FEEDING FUTURES TOGETHER

This year, CTFB launched the Feeding Futures School Pantry program, expanding partnerships with school districts to establish food pantries on K-12 campuses. These pantries provide children and families with fresh, nutritious food in a familiar, accessible location — their child's school — removing the transportation barriers many families face when seeking food assistance. With a market-style setup, families can select foods that best meet their unique needs. Since the first pantry opened in January 2024, the program has distributed over 75,000 meals through eight school pantries, supporting students and their families where they are.
